Eshkol Israeli P.M.

To replace Ben Gurion: Levi Eshkol, Finance Minister of Israel.

PREDICT GOVERNMENT OF NATIONAL UNITY

BEN GURION WILL REMAIN IN KNESSET

By Aaron Sarfati, CJN Correspondent

JERUSALEM. — Levi Eshkol, 68-year-old Finance Minister of Israel and one of the country's practical politicians, soon will replace visionary and idealistic 76-year-old David Ben Gurion as Prime Minister of Israel. Mr. Eshkol who, like Ben Gurion, is Polish-born (his former name is Shkolnik), will be asked by President Zalman Shazar to form the next cabinet.

If he accepts, Mr. Eshkol will be the third Israeli to serve as Prime Minister since the establishment of the state. David Ben Gurion, who resigned on Sunday, served as Prime Minister from 1948 to 1953, when Moshe Sharett took over as Premier and Pinhas Lavon became Defense Minister.

Mr. Sharett resigned following the "Lavon Affair" which involved security irregularities. In 1955 Ben Gurion then stepped in again to become Prime Minister and Minister of Defense, an office he has held up to now.

WILL REMAIN M.P.

Ben Gurion's resignation became known at noon on Sunday following a brief cabinet meeting. His secretary then announced that the Prime Minister also would relinquish his seat in Parliament. On Tuesday morning, however, Mrs. Yael Uzai, who is also cabinet secretary, stated that Mr. Ben Gurion yielded to party pressure; he will keep his seat in Parliament till further notice.

Mr. Ben Gurion remains Prime Minister of the caretaker cabinet till Mr. Eshkol assumes the premiership.

At a dramatic meeting Monday night, which lasted till the wee hours of the morning, David Ben Gurion refused to reconsider the appeal of the party leadership, to retract his resignation.

POLITICAL BOMB

The Labor Party (Mapai) then decided to ask Levi Eshkol, outgoing Minister of Finance, to form the new cabinet. (It is reported that Mr. Shazar, the President, and Kadish Luz, Parliament speaker, already agreed unofficially on Eshkol, the pragmatic politician, as successor to the fiery Ben Gurion.)

Mr. Ben Gurion's resignation on Sunday resounded like a political bomb explosion when special editions of newspapers and Radio Israel announced the news.

Political observers believe that the next Eshkol cabinet will be of short duration only, since Mr. Eshkol, in contrast to Ben Gurion, has a business-like approach to the formation of a new government and would like to have some opposition parties, even Herut, join the cabinet eventually.

Others predict that the cool-headed Eshkol may be the one to form a government of national unity including all parties except the Communists. This, some Israelis feel, is the answer to Israel's present needs.

PERSONAL REASONS?

Mr. Ben Gurion's reasons for resigning were defined officially as "personal". "They are personal needs," he said. "I propose to keep them to myself."

The Israeli press states that Ben Gurion actually had no alternative but to resign, as many of his old party friends rallied against him because of disagreement on recent policy and on practical politics.

The present coalition governing Israel includes: Ben Gurion's Mapai which holds about one-third of the seats in the Parliament; the National Religious Party (Mizrachi); Ahdut Avodah, a labor group to the left of Mapai; and Poale Agudat Israel, the labor group of Aguda.

In the opposition are: Herut; the Liberal party; Agudat Israel; the leftist Mapam; also the very small Communist Party.

GOLDA MEIR VERSUS B.G.

The internal feuds within Ben Gurion's party came to the fore recently. It is reported that both Moshe Sharett and Foreign Minister Golda Meir are opposed to Ben Gurion's policies. Ben Gurion recently was involved in very controversial issues, one of which was the resignation of the very talented and respected Chief of the Israeli Security Services who opposed Ben Gurion's policy on the handling of the problem of German scientists in Cairo. Also there is some opposition within Mapai against Ben Gurion's pro-Adenauer orientation. Another incident resented by some Mapai Knesset members was the offence in Parliament against the opposition Herut party when Mr. Ben Gurion had to withdraw his statement.

In its newspaper Herut, the opposition party, hailed the resignation of Ben Gurion. Herut claims that, by removing himself, Mr. Ben Gurion has removed the principle obstacles to a government of national unity. It calls for a new election now instead of 1965.

Ben Gurion was born David Green in Plonsk, Poland, October, 1886. He was seventeen-years old when he came to Palestine as a pioneer. For fifteen years prior to the establishment of the Jewish state, he headed the World Zionist Organization as chief executive.

The USSR And Public Opinion

- A report from Moscow to the reliable New York Times, last week, stated, i.e.:
- The Soviet leadership seems to have become more sensitive to world public opinion than in the past.
- Western analysts recently have noted that in some instances foreign reactions have exerted a moderating influence in domestic affairs.
- In the last few months the Kremlin has responded to criticism abroad by modifying some of its attitudes toward its intellectuals, and alleviating the plight of Soviet Jews.
- When the leadership feels that vital national or Communist interests are at stake, world opinion has not apparently weighed decisively in policy-making. This was evident in the Soviet termination in August, 1961, of the voluntary moratorium on nuclear testing, and the emplacement of nuclear missiles in Cuba last year.
- The defensive attitude of the Soviet party toward foreign rebukes of its cultural policy also was displayed at a news conference for foreign journalists called last month by Sergei P. Pavlov, first secretary of the Young Communist League.

Mr. Pavlov denied allegations that Yevgeny Yevtushenko, the young liberal poet, was being persecuted. He insisted that it was Yevtushenko who was refusing to cooperate with his official publishers.

- Soviet leaders and the press have been stung by criticism abroad into denying that anti-Semitism exists in the Soviet Union. Previously the subject was taboo here.
- The change in policy resulted from foreign complaints about the high percentage of Jews among those accused publicly of economic crimes such as speculation. A Jewish survey has estimated that about 60 per cent of those executed for these crimes had been Jews.
- The outcry abroad came to a climax last February when Bertrand Russell, the 90-year-old British philosopher, who has espoused a number of Soviet causes, took up the position with Premier Khruschev. When the Soviet leader retorted with a denial that the problem existed, the question became an active issue in the Soviet press. It was dealt with again last week by Izvestia, the Government newspaper.
- Observers here doubt that the fundamental position of the Jews in the Soviet Union has been improved. However, Premier Khruschev's statements and articles in the provincial press were believed to have inhibited local manifestations of anti-Semitism.

Other evidence of increased Soviet sensitivity to world opinion is seen in the increasing preoccupation of the Soviet press with replying to specific critical comments abroad concerning Soviet life and official policies.

LEVESQUE AT ISRAEL DINNER

MONTREAL, (CJN) — Rene Levesque, Quebec's Minister of Natural Resources, presented his views about Quebec's national revolution and its economic implications before an attentive, but not uncritical, capacity audience at the Annual Dinner of the Canada-Israel Chamber of Commerce and Industry here.

Some 400 members of the manufacturing, trading and banking community, Canadians of French and Anglo-Saxon stock, as well as representatives of many ethnical groups, Catholics, Protestants and Jews, assembled as the Sheraton Mt.-Royal Hotel under the chairmanship of Sam Steinberg, President of Steinberg's Limited, who is succeeded as President of the Chamber, by newly-elected Torontonian industrialist, Mark A. Levy.

The Chamber, established only in October 1961, has made remarkable progress and came in for commendation from Canada's and Israel's Trade Ministers, Mitchell Sharp and Pinhas Sapir, who sent cordial messages to the Meeting. Yaacov

Toronto Yeshiva College Will Have New Dormitory

Toronto's Ner Israel Yeshiva will hold its groundbreaking ceremony for a new dormitory and dining room building this coming Tuesday, June 25th, at 4:00 pm. The ceremony will take place on the campus grounds, Finch Avenue.

Though founded only four years ago, Ner Israel Yeshiva College already has become an important education on the Canadian Jewish scene. It is situated on a thirteen-acre suburban estate in a scenic atmosphere conducive to study.

The Hebrew curriculum includes an intensive study of the Talmud, the Bible and Jewish religious law and ethics. The studies are under the supervision of the President and Dean of the Ner Israel Yeshiva College in Baltimore, Rabbi Jacob I. Ruderman. Rabbi Sholom Gold is principal of Toronto's Ner Israel.

The secular program offers a complete high school curriculum, through grade 13, under the inspection of the Ontario Department of Education.

Dormitory and dining room facilities are available for all students who represent a cross section of Canadian Jewry, with students coming from all provinces.

Two years ago the Yeshiva embarked on an expansion program. At that time the first phase of construction consisting of modern spacious classrooms and an up-to-date science laboratory was completed.

Recently Ner Israel began the second and most ambitious phase, the construction of modern dormitories, dining room, kitchens, study lounges and recreational facilities, cost of which will exceed $400,000,00. The Yeshiva was granted a loan from C.M.H.C. for $343,110,00 towards the cost of the new building. It is expected that construction will be completed by the beginning of September so as to make possible the acceptance of the many students who have applied for admission.

Because of these enlarged facilities, there now will be room for more students seeking an intensive and complete education that includes not only the regular general studies but a thorough Jewish education as well.

Officers of the Yeshiva are: Meyer Lebovic, president; Hershel Rubenstein, immediate past president; Sandy Hofstedter and Max Rubenstein, vice-presidents; Saul Sigler, treasurer; Joseph Lebovic, secretary; Wilferd Gordon, Q.C., chairman of the executive.

SWEDISH PARLIAMENT VOTES SUBSIDIES FOR DAY SCHOOL

STOCKHOLM (JCNS) — The two Chambers of the Swedish Riksdag (Parliament) by a combined vote of 190 against 170 have agreed that the Government should grant the Jewish Hillel Day School here a state subsidy. The school was founded in 1955 as a private Jewish elementary school.

The combined vote was necessary because, when the two chambers voted separately, the first chamber decided against the subsidy (69-58), while the second chamber voted in favour by 112 against 95, despite a negative recommendation by a special parliamentary commission.

During the debate in the second chamber, Protestant Pastor Primarius Ake Zetterberg (Socialist) mentioned the high level of Jewish culture which had enriched Swedish culture, and stressed the importance of Hebrew without which Jewish youth would not be able to feel solidarity with Israel and Israeli culture. He also spoke against assimilation by the Jews and thought that one should support the rebirth of Jewish culture and Jewish self-consciousness.

Those opposed to the subsidy presented the same arguments as the Jewish liberal group here — namely that Jewish children should not isolate themselves, but should be educated in Swedish schools together with their Swedish schoolmates.

During the debate it was pointed out that all Jewish schools in Western Europe, and even in some Eastern European countries, were receiving some governmental financial support.

It was remarkable that the only Swedish party to vote unanimously for the subsidy was the Communist Party. In principle, the Communists are against the existence of private schools, but they are of the opinion that as long as some private schools are subsidized by the State, the Jewish elementary school should also get the same benefit.

HASIDIC LEADER FAVORS PRAYER IN PUBLIC SCHOOL

NEW YORK (LNS) — The Lubavitcher Rebbe, Rabbi Menachem M. Schneerson, spoke out strongly here this week in affirming his position in favor of federal aid to parochial schools. The Rebbe reiterated his affirmative stand in favor of federal assistance to secular departments of parochial schools, which would enhance the progress and uplift the standards of these institutions without constituting any violation of separation of church and state principles, as clearly evidenced by the various forms of federal aid granted, both in the past and present, to such schools.

In enlisting their support the Rebbe noted the marked shift on the part of individuals and groups toward favoring such federal aid.

At the same time the Rebbe reasserted his approval of a non-denominational prayer to be recited in public schools. The Rebbe maintained that such prayer, provided it be non-denominational, is valid from the standpoint of Jewish religious law and urged that no legal measures be spared in effecting a revision and repeal of the United States Supreme Court ban of New York's non-denominational Regents Prayer.

REFORM LEADER WARNS AGAINST SECULARISM

LONDON, (JCNS) — A warning that the growing secularism in the Jewish community might lead to its disappearance was given to more than 500 members and guests of the West London Synagogue of British Jews, by its president, Mr. A. S Diamond.

He was speaking at a dinner to mark the 120th anniversary of the synagogue and the Reform Movement, held at the Hilton Hotel, Park Lane. Many Anglo-Jewish leaders from both the Orthodox and Progressive sections were present.

"When, more than ever before, adherents of religious faiths are drawn together by the knowledge of what they hold in common, it at least behoves the leaders of the various shades of Jewish religious opinions to come together and consider together the common problem that they face," said Mr. Diamond.

This appeal for greater unity and tolerance was echoed later in the proceedings by Sir Alan Mocatta, Q.C., who, while stressing his devotion to the Sephardi community, said that this did not prevent him from sharing the pleasure of the West London Synagogue on this great occasion.

The important thing to emphasize, he added, was that they were all, whatever their congregations, members of the Jewish faith. "In our religious worship, unity does not mean uniformity," he said.

For Algeria Jews More Aid Needed

MARSEILLES, (JCNS) — The Welfare Agencies, which the French Government has decided to "reactivate" owing to the new wave of refugees from Algeria this summer, started operating again on June 15, it was announced here.

Information from Algiers indicate that all available seats on ships and airliners bound for France are fully booked until July 15. Already about 4,358 people have arrived here from Algeria, as against 2,973 the previous week and 2,976 during May 12 to 18.

It is believed that some 50,000 refugees will arrive in France this summer, of whom between 10 and 12 per cent will probably be Jews.

Swiss Act On Blocked Funds

GENEVA (JCNS) — The Swiss Government has now set up a special department to deal with unclaimed deposits placed in Swiss banks by those trying to escape from Nazi persecution.

The setting up of the department was foreshadowed in a law which came into force on April 10 this year. It specified that efforts would first be made to trace the owners of valuables deposited during the Nazi regime in Germany, or their heirs.

If they could not be found, the unclaimed deposits would be handed over to philanthropic organizations assisting victims of Nazism.

The term valuables includes cash, jewels, paintings and other works of art. A total sum running into millions of pounds is thought to be involved.

By M. J. Nurenberger

exit: david ben gurion

David Ben Gurion's resignation as Prime Minister of Israel is regretted by many within Israel and, even more, outside the borders of the Jewish state.

To most Jews in and out of Israel, David Ben Gurion has become identified with his country in the last years. The white-haloed head, the keen expression on the kind face, are familiar to most Jews, and to people in general, as the pater familias of the Jewish people.

This attitude, this sentiment are shared alike by Ben Gurion's staunchest supporters and most committed opponents. As one of the opposition leaders recently told me about Ben Gurion:

"I fought him all my life. I disagreed with most of his policies — especially his retreat from Sinai. But I know that his intentions, even when he fights us, never are motivated by gall, but by convictions."

At this moment, when Israel is so very much exposed to a possible attack by its enemies, Ben Gurion's resignation and his leaving the political scene unquestionably will be deplored by his own friends as well as by those who do not agree with him. Yet, no matter how important the role of Ben Gurion may be, a nation, especially one governed democratically, will always find a new leader to take over the helm.

It is still too early to evaluate Ben Gurion's role in the upbuilding and leading of the Jewish state. Regardless how much one disagrees with some features of his policy (for example: the retreat from Sinai), no one will minimize the fact that Ben Gurion's name is linked indissolubly with the glory of Israel. In 1948 he dared impose upon his party the historic decision to proclaim the Jewish state. He possessed the courage and vision to fight for the unity of Israel's army. It was his efforts that made ONE organization for the defense of the country out of several underground factions which fought the British. It was he who organized the victorious battles against the seven Arab nations when they attacked the fledgling country.

Despite his resignation, I feel that the dapper, 76-year-young Mr. Ben Gurion will continue to inspire the country and Jews all over the world with his profound belief in the historic mission of our people, whether he be in or out of government. Ben Gurion's role is far from terminated.

Cairo Stops All Exit Visas to Jews

LONDON (JCNS) - Egyptian and stateless Jews applying for exit visas from Egypt during the past few months have been refused them. No reason has been given.

Describing the latest restrictions imposed by Cairo, a Jew formerly from Egypt who was in London this week on his way to the U.S.A. said that, from 1959 until fairly recently, Jews wishing to leave Egypt permanently had been allowed to do so and take with them a certain amount of furniture, as well as E£100 in cash.

Now the only Jews who can still leave Egypt without difficulty are those holding foreign citizenship. The rest of the 2,500 Jews in the country have no choice but to stay.

WORRIED

There has been no anti-semitism or physical persecution but Egypt's Jews are worried at the restrictive measures introduced by the authorities.

As far as communal life is concerned, the informant told the JCNS that it was restricted to purely religious matters, although the community has been without a Chief Rabbi since the death of Rabbi Nahum.

All the ten or more synagogues in the Jewish quarter are deserted, in an area which once housed 12,000 Jews and 3,000 Karaites.

Even two Jewish schools, which the community still administers, now have Moslem pupils as well as the 400 Jewish children still on their registers. Before the latest exodus in 1948-50 there were some 7,000 Jewish children at the schools.

TROUBLE WITH HINDU JEWS

BOMBAY (JCNS)—Anger at the Israeli rabbinate's ban on marriages between members of the Bene Israel sect and other Jews seems likely to flare up again with the arrival in India of Rabbi Zev Gotthold.

The rabbi, an official of the Israel Ministry for Religious Affairs, is conducting an investigation in India to determine whether the Bene Israel should be considered Jews from the point of view of the Halakha (Rabbinic Law).

Meetings to protest against Rabbi Gotthold's mission are being organised by a new body calling itself the Bene Israel Purity Justification Committee.

The entire Indian Press has taken up the cause of the Bene Israel sect and there have been denunciations and demonstrations at which black flags were displayed.

Local Jewish leaders are perturbed by the possible effect such campaigns are likely to have on Indian non-Jews. The storm which in fact concerns only Indian Jewry is seen by observers here as liable to harm India's growing friendship for Israel.

TORONTO UJWF CONTROLLER AT CONFERENCE IN NEW YORK

CLEVELAND (CJN) — Henry Cassel, comptroller of the United Jewish Welfare Fund of Toronto, will be among controllers and office administrators of 13 large-city federations who will attend an all-day conference in New York City on Friday, June 21 to study the use of electronic computers and the application of computer-based office systems to the processing of their fund raising and cash collection campaign data.

The conference is sponsored by the Budget Research Department of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds.

Ten years ago, when the rapid growth of federation operations outstripped the limitations of manual office systems then in operation, the CJFWF sponsored similar conferences to study conversion to punch-card systems—systems that have been extensively used in the past decade.

Today, CJFWF officials point out, data processing demands have again increased greatly and large-city federations are once more being forced to examine and consider new forms of accounting — machine processing — which may accomplish more, at proportionately less cost.

LEVESQUE

Herzog, Israel Ambassador in Ottawa and A. J. Andrew, Canadian Ambassador in Tel-Aviv, went on record with words of praise and appreciation for the work of the Chamber.

Reports by Bernard M. Bloomfield, Hon. Treasurer, and Stephen S. Barber, National Executive Director, presented in English and in French, showed that Membership of the Chamber had tripled within eighteen months. The setting up of a strong and active branch of the Chamber in Israel is foreseen to take place during the forthcoming visit to Israel by the Executive Director and several leading members from Canada.

The volume of Canada-Israel trade has been going up steadily and 1963 should end with a new high. Outgoing President Steinberg challenged parties concerned to double two-way trade figures within the next 12 months.

In outlining some of the main points of his program for the new Executive of the Chamber, Mark A. Levy invited Canadian participation at the 1964 Tel-Aviv International Trade Fair and he announced that a recent message from Jerusalem confirmed that the Israel Government had decided to take part in the 1967 Canadian World Exhibition in Montreal. It is known that Israel had withdrawn from the New York 1964 Fair, in spite of considerable opposition.

Amongst other Headtable guests were Mgr. Irenee Lussier, rector of the Universite de Montreal, and Justice Harry Batshaw, both co-chairman of the newly established "Amities Culturelles Canada Francais — Israel", members of the Consular Corps and representatives of the Montreal Board of Trade and of the French and Belgian Chambers of Commerce.

Amongst the newly-elected thirty members of the Board of Directors are: C. Drummond Birks, (Henry Birks & Sons); Allan Bronfman, (Seagram's Distillers' Corp.); E. R. Ernst, (Bank of Montreal); J. K. Finlayson, (Royal Bank of Canada); C. R. Hughes, (Automatic Electric (Canada) Ltd.); Dr. G. Piette, (Piette, Audy, Pepinay & Bertrand); M. F. Pollock, (Fleetwood Corporation); C. F. Symonds, (T. Eaton Co. Ltd.). Joshua Ronn, (Domestic Cotton Converters), and Thomas Hecht, (Continental Pharma Ltd.), were elected Treasurer and Honorary Secretary respectively. Stphen S. Barber was reelected Executive Director.

HERZOG LEAVES OTTAWA; TO HEAD U.N. DEPARTMENT AT FOREIGN MINISTRY

JERUSALEM (CJN). — His Excellency, Jaacov Herzog, Israel's Ambassador to Canada, soon will terminate his mission in Ottawa and return home, according to semi-official sources.

Dr. Herzog is scheduled to assume the very important position of Deputy Director General of Israel's Ministry of Foreign Affairs, in charge of United Nations and Middle Eastern Affairs.

According to our informant, Dr. Herzog will deal especially with Arab problems.

stressed. Dr. Herzog also addressed the Convocation Dinner of Yeshiva University and emphasized the new role of North American Jewry in our society.

Recently Herzog also received a Doctorate in International Law from Ottawa University and a special award from the Bar Association in Paris, France.

HONORED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK (CJN). — Ambassador Yaacov Herzog, who last week received a Doctorate of Humane Letters from the Yeshiva University here during commencement exercises was lauded for his successful challenge of historian Toynbee. Two years ago, Ambassador Herzog debated publicly at McGill University with Arnold Toynbee and virtually destroyed the historian's thesis on the fossilization of Jewish history.

During the presentation of the doctorate, the Ambassador's contribution to Jewish scholarship, and especially his English translation and commentary of a section of the Mishna, were

PLAUT: RABBIS MUST BE MORE THAN FUNCTIONARIES

CINCINNATI, O., (CJN)— Addressing the graduating class of Hebrew Union College — Jewish Institute of Religion on the eve of their ordination as rabbis, Rabbi W. Gunther Plaut of Holy Blossom Temple in Toronto stated here that rabbis must be more than functionaries of religious institutions, they must be leaders where too often they have been followers — leaders in thought as well as in social deed. Rabbis must forever be students and scholars, but must not yield to the temptation of eternal busyness; for they must be more, they must leave their ivory towers of continual calm and enter the rough and tumble of social controversy and communal action.

A Torontonian, David Jessel, son of Yacov Jessel of 27 Westoverhill Road, was among the twenty-three newly ordained men.

AMNESTY FOR WAR CRIMINALS?

The proposals to amnesty Nazi war criminals in Federal Germany's custody, now being mooted in German political circles, should be resisted on a variety of grounds, not least being the best interests of the Federal Republic.

Such a move, whatever its motivations and reasons, would be widely interpreted inside Germany and outside as indicating a more benevolent attitude to the offences.

If such people are fit to be at liberty after a relatively few years' imprisonment, their crimes cannot have been so serious, many Germans, who tend to take their guidance from official actions, will assume. And once at liberty some of them can be expected to emulate Germany's last fuhrer, Doenitz, and indulge in further political activity.

Many people outside Germany will be prone, rightly or wrongly, sincerely or maliciously, to accept the amnesty as an indication of the bad faith or neo-Nazi character of the Federal Government.

Many, too, are likely to attribute it to the change in German political life occasioned by the imminent retirement of Dr. Adenauer and the accession of Vice-Chancellor Erhard to the Chancellorship.

Everyone concerned has a duty to bring these considerations to the notice of the German authorities at home and abroad.

ALEX LIPSON

B. B.'s NEW PRESIDENT

B'nai B'rith's District Number One, comprising the New England area, New York state and Eastern Canada, once again has a Canadian president in the person of Toronto's popular communal worker Dr. Alex Lipson. Lipson is known for his devotion to a wide range of Jewish causes — to name a few, he has headed such agencies as the Jewish Camp Council, the Hillel Foundation, and also is an active member of his synagogue.

As president of the District (or of the Grand Lodge as it is sometimes called) he follows in the pattern of other distinguished Canadian Sons of the Covenant who held this position: Isadore Markus, J. Irving Oelbaum, Samuel Moscovitch and Maxwell Lewis. There is one difference however: Alex Lipson will be the last Canadian to head the District as next year it will cease to be an international district, the Eastern Canadian lodges having decided to cut adrift and "go independent". It is fitting in a sense, therefore, that the District has chosen a Canadian to govern its affairs in this last season of its joint international activity.

We congratulate Dr. Lipson on this honour and wish him a rewarding term of activity in his favored fraternal work and in service of the Jewish people.

Who's Running In Downsview?

● Two candidates have been nominated so far for the newly formed provincial riding of Downsview carved out of what was formerly York-Centre. The first to be named was Vernon Singer, Q.C. who might be called the incumbent since he sits in the present legislature for York Centre. Vern is a well-known attorney, a youthful 41, an ex-reeve of North York township, (he preceded Norman Goodhead) and a former contender for the Liberal leadership in Ontario. He is a member of Temple Sinai. Back some years he was President of the Ontario Young Liberals.

● The other nominee, who will stand for the New Democrats, is Alan Borovoy. Borovoy is about ten years younger than Singer and also an attorney though at the moment he does not engage in private practice of the law (he does, however, do considerable labor conciliation and arbitration work). Borovoy is best-known as the executive-secretary of the Labor Committee for Human Rights and has spearheaded much activity in Ontario these last four years in anti-discrimination on the racial and religious front (in jobs, apartment houses, golf courses, summer resorts, etc.) — Alan, a bachelor, is associated with the Jewish Labor Committee.

It now remains to be seen whom the Conservatives will produce to contest this strategic riding on behalf of the John Robarts administration.

Jewish Weekly In Danger

From Winnipeg comes the story of another Canadian Jewish publication on the brink of collapse. This time it is the old established Israelite Press — Yiddish Vort, published by Noiach Witman, ebullient Winnipegger and Labour Zionist.

A "Publisher's Statement" consisting of a long double column of type gives the background. Up to 1954, this weekly which is a bilingual one — half in Yiddish and half in English — was a venture of the Simkin family who carried it on as part of their general printing ventures. "Printing the paper," writes Witman, "was never profitable to them. As a matter of fact, in the last few years it was a losing proposition. This was part of Fivel Simkin's life and the paper continued."

However, when the Simkins sold their ventures to "a large corporation from out of town", Noiach Witman learned that Fivel Simkin and his family had been virtually subsidizing the paper, both when they owned it and later when Witman took over, for it emerged that the weekly was being printed for $22 a page less than any other customer would pay. Should the price be raised by even $10 per page, "we would surely be out of existence in a few months." The new owners of the printing shop have suggested — with tact and consideration — that the paper seek its printer elsewhere.

So what did Noiach do?

He "spoke to printers and visited the plants of other ethnic weeklies (of which there are many in Winnipeg . . . . the Ukrainian community alone supports four publications).

He learned "that each newspaper has an organization behind it, which gives it moral backing. This is how it works: each paper has a few hundred shareholders who are interested and encourage the publishers of the paper.

"It seems that we are forced to establish our own printing plant. It does not involve insurmountable difficulties or tens of thousands of dollars. Universal Printers will help us get established. However, I do not want to do it alone. I note the difficulties of the Yiddish newspapers in Toronto and Montreal and I do not want to carry the complete responsibility alone."

Witman therefore asks that about 200 people, supporters of Yiddish — become shareholders in the paper, elect a board of directors, with an executive. Only such a set-up, he feels, could assure the continued existence of the Yiddishe Vort in Winnipeg.

Jews Drop In Proportion

The relative proportion of the Jewish population in Canada has fallen a bit from the steady level of 1.5% which is adhered to in the census years 1931, 1941 and 1951. It has fallen by 1/10th of a decimal point to 1.4%. This drop does not mean there are less Jews in Canada, but that the total population of the country, because of immigration and natural causes has risen at a higher rate than that of the Jewish group.

In the year 1921 — more than 40 years ago — there were more Jews in Canada than there were persons of Dutch, Ukranian and Polish ethnic origin. In 1961, the Jews are behind not only these three, but also are smaller in numbers than the Italians.

Looking at the overall picture of the ethnic composition of Canadians, the Anglo-Saxon (or Anglo-Celtic) proportion stood at 57% sixty years ago, the French group at 30%, and all other ethnic groups combined at a little higher than 12%. The year 1931 was the last census year in which the Anglo-Celtic group (i.e. — English, Scottish, Irish and Welsh) formed a majority of the population — 52%.

In the last accounting of the population taken two years ago, the Anglo-Celtic element is down to 43.8%, the French group stands at 30.4%, and the others — the so-called "third element" — consists of 25.8%.

STOCKS HOLD FIRM IN ISRAELI CRISIS

By DAVID R. FRANCIS

MR. FRANCIS is Business & Financial expert of the Christian Science Monitor, where this report appeared originally.

NEW YORK — Investors in Israel securities are not easily frightened.

Despite the war threats in the Middle East of recent days, prices on the Tel Aviv stock exchange have advanced steadily.

Premier David Ben-Gurion stated that Israel had "sufficient grounds to believe without a shadow of a doubt that the Arab countries are contemplating an attack."

Commented Robert Farber, specialist in Israel securities for Carl Marks & Co., New York brokerage house: "It is just amazing.

"The Israel market in the past days has gone up in such a fashion that they must not believe anything has gone on."

Crisis Nothing New

Added Gideon Strauss, executive vice-president for American operations of Bank Leumi Le Israel B.M.: "Israel has lived with crises for so many years that its people disregard political tensions."

No Rush to Sell

According to both Bank Leumi and Carl Marks, American investors in Israel have not been alarmed by the recent affairs in the Middle East either. Neither reported any rush to sell or any slump in activity.

It is estimated that there are more than 100,000 United States and Canadian holders of Israel stocks and many hundreds of thousands holding Israel bonds.

Markets Involved

American depositary receipts of American Israel Paper Mills are traded on the American Stock Exchange and some other shares on the over-the-counter market. The curb also deals in certain shares of the Alliance Tire & Rubber Company, an Israel firm.

In a few weeks, a new mutual fund, first American Israel Mutual Fund, will be put on the market.

Recognizing this new interest in Israel securities, Bank Leumi established Leumi securities only last February. Its manager said business was flourishing.

It is reckoned that one of the main reasons for this strengthened activity in Israel shares is the health of the nation's economy.

Rising Prices Curbed

Since devaluation, the government has succeeded in curbing price rises and keeping them within reasonable limits. It has also declared a wage freeze.

Foreign exchange reserves have risen remarkably to around $500,000,000, almost equal to Israel's foreign debt —a notable sum for so small a nation.

Mr. Strauss said that his bank had been asked by the Bank of Israel to discourage the influx of any new foreign money into Israel. It would have only an inflationary effect on the nation's money supply or increase the foreign exchange reserves.

Israel, he said, now wants foreign know-how, licenses, and technology but is not so keen on new investment. Production already is growing at 11 to 12 percent (fixed prices) and there is no unemployment.

Bank Grows Rapidly

Bank Leumi itself is one of the securities most heavily traded in Israel and abroad. Its consolidated assets in 1962 were $665,000,000, a sizeable amount.

The Israel bank has grown rapidly in international markets in recent years. It moved from 412th to 139th place among the 500 largest commercial banks in the free world in the last five years.

Its foreign operations now account for about 33 percent of business, compared with only 10 percent five years ago.

JEW FACES GERMAN (12) — By M. J. Nurenberger

...and israel?

Everything pertaining to the relations between Israel and West Germany is as unnatural as the contact itself. Last year Joachim Besser, one of Germany's best known journalists, wrote a very touching piece about this back street love affair between the new Germany and the State of Israel. His article, published in the "Koelner Stadtanzeiger", remarkably was entitled, "Money Instead of Relations". Of course, Besser was referring to the reparations agreement between Israel and the Federal Republic signed on September 10, 1952. On that day, when Moshe Sharett, then the Foreign Minister of Israel,, signed this agreement, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer told him:

"I looked forward towards this day with great expectations," to which Sharett replied:

"For us too this is a day of significance."

This occurred in Luxembourg almost eleven years ago. Now, however, Mr. Besser writes: "Our relations towards the State of Israel . . . here one does not dare to continue the sentence. For do normal relations look like this? There is a reparations deal and nothing else."

* * * *

The building of the Israeli Mission, on Subbelrather Strasse #15 in rebuilt Cologne, symbolizes this abnormal relationship between West Germany and Israel. First of all, the Israeli Mission is not located in Bonn, the capital, but in Cologne. It does not resemble the ordinary embassy building but looks like a fenced-in factory. For officially, it is not an embassy in the strict sense of the word; rather, it is a commercial mission which regulates business transactions resulting both directly and indirectly from the German payments on account of the reparations deal.

Though Felix Shinnar, the Israeli Ambassador, is recognized as the envoy of the State of Israel, as head of the mission, the entire arrangement is characteristic of an illicit love affair in a French novel. Unquestionably the monarch loves the girl, and she appreciates the attentions of the king. But higher state reasons do not allow the official nuptials to take place.

Some of the effects of this relationship border upon the comical side. For example, the chief of the Israeli Mission has discontinued to attend official functions in Bonn. Because Israel has no official ambassadorial status there, its envoy is placed last at state affairs. This is protocol and the Germans can do nothing about it — except officially to recognize the embassy.

Upon several occasions Israel has hinted that, while in 1952 (when Germany wanted it) it was not yet ready for the establishment of normal diplomatic relations, this can be arranged now. However (as in the French novel), now the Germans are snubbing the advances of the Israelis. Meanwhile, in order to avoid public offence by being relegated to the background, the Israeli ambassador does not attend diplomatic functions in Bonn.

TWO FRIENDS: Ben Gurion and Adenauer in New York

German statesmen privately told me that they desire nothing more than to normalize diplomatic contact with the State of Israel. But should such steps be taken by Bonn, the Arabs immediately would threaten to recognize East Germany. And were this to happen, the Federal Government, according to its Hallstein doctrine, would have to sever diplomatic relations with all the Arab states.

Whether the Arabs actually would dare such extreme measures no one can foretell. The fact remains that, for the moment, the Germans have surrendered to this blackmail.

Those German statesmen (and I believe Dr. Gerstenmeier and Frank Josef Strauss are among them) who are ready to call the Arab bluff—for all Arab states are receiving tremendous economic aid—wish to see the relations normalized. Apparently, however, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs is not prepared to go through with it. Furthermore, it was hinted to me that Washington does not encourage a more defined diplomatic connection between Jerusalem and Bonn —at any rate, not for the moment.

Without a doubt, the situation was discussed during Franz Josef Strauss' visit to Israel. On the Israeli side, it is suggested that only a courageous action on the part of Adenauer could solve the problem. Though it seems that now Adenauer is not so keen about the prospects of such relations as during the honeymoon in the fall of 1952 and in March, 1960, when we met David Ben Gurion in New York.

* * * *

Whatever the political aspects of this curious rapport between Israel and the Federal German Republic, the economic and military features are of great importance to Israel. Zvi Brosh, head of the Information Department of the Israeli Mission in Cologne, informed me that, short of normal diplomatic relations, the most cordial attitude is noticeable towards Israel throughout Germany. Nevertheless, despite all this, one notices a definite trend all over the Federal Republic towards "a realistic" attitude vis-a-vis the Arabs. The majority of the present day German statesmen of all parties is obsessed still by the guilt complex and the moral debt to Ben Gurion for having reintroduced post-war Germany into the family of civilized nations. However, as time goes by, a younger group is coming to the fore. Whether these younger men and women "who did not know Josef" will remember, only time can tell.

This is the twelfth of a series. The final installment will appear next week in THE CANADIAN JEWISH NEWS.

SERMON FOR THE WEEK

QUANTITY AND QUALITY

The biblical account of Korah's grave mutiny against Moses and Aaron attracted a great deal of attention from the rabbinic commentators who allowed their lively imagination to wander freely over every detail of this gripping story.

One of the most intriguing legends which they weave into the plot tells of Korah's attempt to discredit Moses by pouring ridicule on the laws which the great leader had submitted to the people. According to this legend, Korah appeared before Moses and held up a garment that was all blue and asked: "This garment which is totally blue, does it require to have on its corners the tzizit with its cords of blue, or not?" To which Moses replied, "Yea, the garment still requires the tzizit with its blue cord". At this, Korah turned to the people and mocked at Moses and the law.

Korah then went on to ask a second question. "If I have a house filled with sacred scrolls and religious books, does it still require a mezuza on the doorpost?" And Moses answered again and said: "Yea, it still requires a mezuza on the door." Then Korah laughed again and raised arguments to ridicule the law and belittle Moses before the people.

It is worth considering why the blue garment still require the special cord of blue, and why a room full of Torah scrolls should still have to be adorned with the mezuza with its two brief paragraphs from the Shema. Surely, whatever purpose is served by the mezuza is done far more effectively by the scrolls of the Torah and the sacred writings which fill the house!

Perhaps the best answer is that in Jewish religious teaching what really matters is not quantity but quality — the value of sincerity and the purity of intention. Everything should depend on what we call kavana. This is a key word in religious observance and, in spite of some reservations about it, ideally every religious act ought to be performed with the proper kavana. Without such intention the religious rite is useless because there is no heart in it. For this reason every ritual mitzva is performed with a blessing which raises the simple outward act to the sublime heights of communication with the Divine.

The example of prayer will do for everything else. Quantity here is of no value except as an automatic reading exercise. Far better one selected page with total concentration and devotion than a hundred pages mumbled through without thought. The Hassidic teachers emphasised that this was the way of true prayer — a service of the heart. But in this they merely followed the normative rabbinic teaching which we have largely ignored in the modern synagogue.

That is why in the laws ridiculed by Korah quantity did not matter. The wholly blue garment was useless for the purpose of tzizit. What did matter was the single cord deliberately attached to it as a symbol of God's presence, just as a house full of sacred books still requires the tiny mezuza intentionally fixed as the effective symbol. In the religious life, to emphasise quantity is to worship the false god of materialism. The true spiritual dimension is discovered only in the quality of sincerity.

Anne Frank Memorial

FRANKFORT, (JCNS) — Four hundred people attended a ceremony in commemoration of Anne Frank held in Frankfort last Sunday. Anne, who died in Bergen-Belsen in 1945, was born in Frankfort in 1929. Young people predominated at the gathering, which was organised by the Jewish community of victims of Nazism.

Dr. Eritz Bauer, the Attorney-General of Hesse, was the main speaker. The world must never forget what had happened, he declared.

EITZ CHAIM GRADUATION

Toronto's Eitz Chaim Evening Schools will hold their annual Graduation Exercises on Tuesday evening, June 25th, at 8:30 p.m., at the school auditorium. The evening schools are located at Clanton Park Synagogues; at 1 Viewmount Ave.; at the Burnside Synagogue; and at the D'Arcy Synagogue. There are classes both on the elementary and Junior High level.

The students of the school receive an intensive Jewish education, plus the added benefits of an extra curricular program including sports, music, and youth services.

At the Graduation the School Band and Choir will perform. Also participating will be Grade Five of the Viewmount branch, directed by Mr. Eisner.

Mr. Harry Botnick will be the chairman of the evening. Dr. J. Diamond, director of the Bureau of Jewish Education will address the graduates.

A reception tendered by the graduates will follow the graduation ceremony. Several scholarships will be awarded. Top honours will be shared by Steven Roth and Moshe Barkin.

Some of this year's Eitz Chaim graduates.

THEATRE IN TORONTO

by BARBARA I. PEARL

BRAVO, BELAFONTE

Leave it to Harry Belafonte to wind up the season at O'Keefe Center with a flourish.

No newcomer to Toronto, Mr. Belafonte presents his program in a new and exciting style. Somehow he never seemed so relaxed, perhaps because he knows what he is doing and where he is going.

His rendition of the Spirituals (Look Over Yonder, Glory Manger, Shake That Little Foot, Windin' Road) come from the heart. More pronounced because of their syncopated beat, they seem to be sung almost like a prayer — a tome in these turbulent times.

Then suddenly we see a homey Belafonte. Why And Why, The Pig And The Inebriate — Harry sings to one big happy family.

Another facet of the remarkable Mr. B. is his adaptability to foreign tongues. There is no language barrier when he sings the Israeli Nad Ilan and Hayoshevet Boganim. Just shut your eyes, and you see an honest-to-goodness Sabra, "r's" and "h's" and all.

Joan Toliver, Mr. Belafonte's Kentucky protege, is no disappointment. Early In The Morning, Cruel War and Five Hundred Miles exemplify her clear, deep contralto.

Summertime Love, Contemporary Dance, Boot Dance, Tango, Mexican Folk Dance — all rendered by the Dance Ensemble, provides some delightful diversion, as well as demonstrating Harry Belafonte's generosity. For when it comes to sharing the limelight, he certainly is no glutton.

MEET THE MINISTER: The Hon. Judy LaMarsh, Minister of National Health and Welfare, is caught in a congenial moment with Mrs. Bella Gryfe, a resident of the Jewish Home for the Aged, during a recent visit to the Home. Miss LaMarsh spoke at the opening rally of the "clean-up phase" of the Home's Building Expansion Fund. The Home and Baycrest Hospital, which has raised $4,500,000 toward its goal of $5,000,000, is seeking the $550,000 in a drive which will continue through June, July and August.

TORONTONIANS ORDAINED

BALTIMORE (CJN) — Several Torontonians will be among the formally ordained rabbis participating in the Hag Hasmiha convocation this coming Sunday, June 23rd, in Baltimore. They are: Sholom Gold, principal of Ner Israel Yeshiva College of Toronto; Chaim Mintz; Reuven Silver; Osher Turin; Zvi Willner; Pinchas Leiner.

Rabbi Gold will address the convocation in the name of the graduates. Another new Torontonian, Dr. Nahum Rabinowitz, who soon will assume the position of rabbi at the Clanton Park Synagogue, will chair the proceedings. Certificates of ordination will be presented by Jacob I. Ruderman, president and dean of Ner Israel.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

STRAWBERRY SOUP

Cold soups may either introduce dinner or may be served at the end — like dessert. In the latter case, the soups are, of course, sweet.

4 cups fresh strawberries
5 cups water
1 cup dry white wine
Juice of ½ lemmon
Grated rind of ½ lemon

Wash and remove hulls from berries. Reserve 1 cup and press the rest through a sieve, pouring water over fruit a little at a time to make a thin puree. Add lemon juice and rind, wine and sugar to taste. Chill and serve with some of the berries in each dessert bowl. For 6.

HUMAN RELATIONS

Daughter-in-Law

DR. ROSE N. FRANZBLAU

QUESTION: My son has been married for nine years. They have two young children. They own a lovely home.

My daughter-in-law and I have had a very pleasant relationship, but lately I find myself wanting to visit them less.

My son has gone into a business which requires him to spend a good deal of time at work. This will be necessary for another year.

It seems that everytime she talks with me, she seems to be hitting at him through me. He is home on Sundays.

I like to bring the children toys, but I am told I should bring wearing apparel instead.

My son provides for all their needs. What is wrong with bringing toys?

ANSWER: In times of tension people take out their anxieties and fears on people who are closest to them and with whom they can afford to take a chance. Grown-ups take it out on their mates, just as litle children do on their parents. By the complaints your daughter-in-law takes out on you, she tells of her faith and trust in you and of her good relationship with you.

Your daughter-in-law must hope and pray for your son's success as much as you all do. But she finds herself terribly lonesome at times and also worries about the outcome.

* * * *

The anxiety turns into anger, and the anger is converted into complaints and criticisms. Your daughter-in-law knows that her husband misses her as much as she misses him and he is working to secure the future of his family. Yet at times she may think that if he were really as smart and able as she thought he was, he could accomplish all this without absence from his family.

Your daughter-in-law may also be trying to communicate something to you that you do not want to hear. When she says that she would rather have clothing than toys, she may be suggesting that with some financial help from his parents your son would be less pressured and would have more time to spend with his family.

* * * *

Her constant complaints about your son may seem like a criticism of you as a parent. If he is not doing right by his children, then it is because you have not done right by him.

Of course, you have the right to decide what to give your grandchildren. However, it should be the presents that the children desire, and that are most meaningful to them. These change along with their growth.

A little boy about to begin school may want clothes that look manly, like what his daddy wears. A little girl, at an even earlier age, suddenly becomes aware of clothes and wants to dress up and change almost like a beginning adolescent.

Therefore, your daughter-in-law's suggestions, along with being practical, are also psychologically sound.

Your presence can allay her fears.

This gift from you of patience and understanding cannot be bought. It can only be given out of the love you have for your son and the family he has created.

TEMPLE SINAI

At a recent congregational meeting of Temple Sinai, the congregants voted in favor of commencing construction of the new 22-room school building not later than Sepember 1 this year.

The $240,000 structure will adjoin the present Temple Building and will provide much-needed classrooms, student assembly hall, library and lounge, chapel and meeting rooms to serve the needs of the rapidly-growing student body which now numbers some 700 pupils in the Religious and Hebrew schools.

● At the Sabbath Eve Service on June 14th, the closing exercises for 1962-63 of the Temple Sinai Hebrew & Religious Schools were held. The service, which filled the Temple sanctuary to capacity, was conducted by Rabbi Jordan Pearlson. Officiating at the candle-lighting ceremony were: Vicki Kelman and Gail Kutner.

Awards were made to those students who distinguished themselves by their scholastic achievements over the past year. 'A Musical Treat", featuring the Shavuot Cantata, was presented by the junior school choir under the direction of Michael Cowan.

KIND OF LIVELY

By RUTHIE

Reams and reams are written about the wounded male — how we wives can make life pleasant for our partners-for-life.

If anything goes wrong at the office, it's our fault. Hubby left the house miserable in the morning because, maybe, we asked for some money. So we spoiled his whole day.

And how can he kiss us goodbye when he has to look at a creamy face and hair-in-curlers head at breakfast? Any wonder he eyes his trim secretary?

Then, the confusion at seven in the ayem! Baby bawls, the older children are, maybe, "shaving" with toothpaste, coffee is running over. So he says, if he has a heart attack, it will be your fault.

* * * *

Well, girls, we just have to mobilize against that stubborn, pig-headed, conceited, ornery man — with whom we can't live without.

Could be, we do require more allowance sometimes. We patiently have to show him it's, after all, for his good. The little dress you've eyed for a month now is on sale, and he himself says he doesn't like to see you in the same thing all the time. So instead of going into apoplexy, he should be thankful for a wife like you — you're actually saving him money, waiting for sales and such.

As for how you look in the morning — well! They say if you live with someone long enough, you get to look like him. All I can say is ukh und vay (woe)! He may be a glamor-boy at night, but early in the morn he's a grouchy, sleepy, bearded, hair-tousled, uncooperating ape — so look who's talking! And it's all yours.

Concerning confusion, he certainly doesn't ease the situation. Instead of helping you calm down the menagerie, he adds to the turmoil by shouting, did you see his socks, where are the handkerchiefs, what happened to the purple shirt? If he'd only open his eyes once, he'd see everything right under his nose — including the shoes he stumbles over.

* * * *

But would you want to change anything? Not I! As Papa used to say:

"You know what you have but you don't know what you'll get."

Anyway, I'm accustomed to the routine by now. Furthermore, there is a small, though important, ingredient involved — love.
